NEWS FROM FOREIGN LANDS

Antwerp Will Surely Draw the Trade Away from London.

The diamond industry of Antwerp will receive a new impetus in the near future through the establishment of a diamond market in that city. Up to now this industry was confined merely to the cutting, grinding and polishing of the stones, the market for uncut stones being London, and Antwerp, Amsterdam and Paris were compelled to go to London for the rough product.

In order to avoid paying taxes to England, and also the many hardships connected with visiting that diamond market, the principal diamond cutters of Antwerp have decided to draw their supply direct from Africa. The first shipment of 50,000 carats of rough diamonds, worth 2,000,000 francs, was received from the mines of Kimberly a few days ago, and from now on Antwerp will be a regular diamond market, with the expectation that Amsterdam and Paris will draw their supply from there. Three extra diamond-cutting mills are now being erected with all the latest improvements, which fact is ample proof that foreign markets appreciate the position which Antwerp is to occupy in the diamond field.

THE Japanese eat more fish than any other people in the world. With them meat eating is a foreign innovation, confined to the wealthy class, or rather to those rich people who prefer it to the national diet.

THE longest animal known to exist is the porcupine, which sometimes exceeds one hundred feet in length.

TRAIN ROBBERS ROUTED

Three Men Hold Up an Express Near St. Louis.

The Train Crew Opened Fire on Them and They Ran Away—But One of Them was Captured.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 6.—Another train was held up last night on the St. Louis and San Francisco Road, this time with the unique accompaniment of a captured robber. Express train No. 1, on the Frisco west-bound, was flagged with a red light a few miles east of Pacific, which is about forty miles west of St. Louis. The train came to a standstill, and two men held the engine crew at bay while a third went to the express car and demanded admittance. The messenger refused to open the door. The demand then came from one of the engine guards to "blow her open." This demand was almost immediately followed by a deafening report, and the wood

FREIGHT TRAIN WRECKED

A Coal Train Runs Into a Freight and the Cars Take Fire.

A coal train ran into a freight train at Radnor yesterday afternoon, completely wrecking several cars and injuring the engineer and conductor of the freight train. Both trains were bound for Philadelphia, the freight train consisting of three cars containing beef from Chicago, and the coal train made up of seventeen cars. Track No. 1 at this point was held by a passenger train which was delayed owing to a hot box. The operator, not knowing that the passenger train had come to a standstill, had given the signal for the freight train to go on to track No. 1. Before the cars had cleared track No. 2 the coal train came along and crashed into the rear of the freight. The cars were piled

RAG MOUNTAIN'S ODD BLINK

A Light that Scintillates Like a Great Diamond on a Towering Spur of the Blue Ridge Mountains—A Team of Trained Wild Geese.

The "Old Rag" is a long jagged spur of the Blue Ridge that skirts the counties of Madison and Green, and loses its name after reaching further south. It is one of the features of the splendid country through which it passes—grand, gloomy and peculiar, its rugged sides clear cut against the sky, and looking forbidding in its towering majesty. Here was the scene of the "Gold Bug" of Poe, one of the weirdest and most thrilling stories, in which the great writer indulges in the mysteries of the stars and divination.

The eastern side of the "Old Rag" overlooks a long stretch of country, and is seen at a great distance. About three-fourths of the way up the side of the mountain is a phenomenon that has for many years attracted the attention of the people for miles around, caused much speculation, and to this day remains the mystery of the "Old Rag." This is a bright, beautiful light which burns and glows on the side of the "Rag." Not every night, but only when the atmosphere is favorable, then the "eye of the Rag" may be seen, dazzling and scintillating as if it were some immense diamond set in the rocks or the everlasting hills.

TIGERS make short work of the buffalo in Sumatra. Therefore to avoid the enemy the buffalo resists at night in the river, with only its nose and horns above the water.

THE surface of a man's lungs is estimated at 150 square feet, which is ten times greater than the surface of the external body.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE

Philadelphia, September 15.—Yesterday the market, while comparatively steady, was lower than it has been any day since the week ending August 21, when prices on imperceptible sliding off in values, which though not apparent at the time, was very conspicuous at the close of the day's trading. The market did not seem to be in a condition that would make it susceptible to good news.
